

LIVES OF 2,000 REPORTED LOST IN SINKING OF SHIP OFF THE NORWEGIAN COAST

Vessel Believed to Have Been British Transport Said to Have Gone Down With All on Board; if True it Marks Greatest Disaster in Marine History, Exceeding Titanic and Lusitania.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY HAS NO CONFIRMATION

By Associated Press.
ARCHANGEL, Friday, Oct. 10.—Two thousand lives have been lost in the wreck of an unnamed British ship on the Norwegian coast, according to a wireless dispatch received here from Helsinki.

If the loss of life in the wreck reported in the foregoing dispatch is as large as indicated the disaster will mark a new record in the annals of the sea. It would seem probable that the ship which was wrecked was a military transport bringing British soldiers from Archangel, from which port Great Britain has been embarking large numbers of men during the last month.

It is known that troop ships have sailed quite recently from Archangel. Copenhagen advices received yesterday, stated that British soldiers who have been on the Archangel front have just landed at Riga and have been rushed to the front south of that city.

to meet the onslaught of German and Russian forces.
The largest recorded loss of life in a marine disaster occurred when the Titanic was sunk after colliding with an iceberg south of Newfoundland on April 14, 1912. The list of deaths showed 1,593 names. The Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine May 7, 1915, carried with her more than 1,200 of her passengers and crew. When the Empress of Ireland was sent to the bottom in the Gulf of St. Lawrence on May 30, 1914, the loss of life was 1,037. One thousand died when the Japanese steamer Kikokomaru sank in Australian waters on September 28, 1913.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Neither the admiralty nor Lloyd's have received any information relative to the wreck of a British ship off the Norwegian coast. At these sources the report is discredited.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Three auto bandits dashed up to a jewelry store in the heart of the business section of the city during the noon hour today, seized $15,000 worth of diamonds, watches and escaped. It was one of the most daring robberies in recent years. Five persons were in the store at the time. They paid no attention to the men who entered until they suddenly drew revolvers and covered the clerks. While two bandits held their weapons in readiness to shoot the third went behind the counter and gathered up the loot. A crowd gave chase but the men escaped. At about the same time robbers entered a store a block away and stole $20,000 worth of furs.

MINE WORKERS AND OPERATORS FAIL TO REACH AGREEMENT

Conference in Philadelphia Results in Deadlock and Adjournment Is Taken.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The conference of bituminous coal miners and operators in session here considering demands of the miners for a 60 per cent increase in wages and a reduction in working hours disagreed today and will adjourn.

A sub-committee that had been considering the demands, finding that it could not agree reported the deadlock condition to the general conference which began sessions at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel yesterday, and recommended final adjournment. Unless something happens in the meantime to prevent it, leaders of the mine workers say, the strike threatened for November 1 will take place. Operators have declared they cannot concede either of the demands of the workers. The mines affected are in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. More than 200,000 men are involved.

SCOTT LYSINGER AND CY KENNEL ALREADY SEASONED WESTERNERS; IN TULSA, OKLA.

Two city youths who left recently for "out West" to "grow up with the country" have landed in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Our heroes, who are none other than Scott Lysinger and Cy Kennel, have decided to stay in Tulsa for the present, at least. In a letter to L. B. Collins, Scott Lysinger lets loose the information that they may even have to go to work there. But already they are full of the spirit of the West and urge Easterners "who want a real change, to begin all over again in our big, new West."

The letter tells of their unusual hard luck after arriving in the Oklahoma city. With $15 between them, they decided to "blow" $5 of it for a big feed. After partaking of fine food in a "swell joint," they felt much better but the meal was too much for Cy who was taken sick and it looked as though a doctor was going to get their remaining $10. However, on October 6, the date of the letter to Mr. Collins, he was rallying and the writer expressed the belief "that by the time this goes to press little Cyrus will be up and among us again."

OPERATIONS RESUMED IN MAHONING VALLEY, FIRST SINCE STRIKE

Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company Pours First Iron During Morning Today, Observer Says.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 11.—Two blast furnaces were operating today in the Mahoning valley for the first time in three weeks. The Youngstown Sheet & Tube company and the Brier Hill Steel company each started a furnace. This action indicates early resumption of operations in finishing mills.

Vice President D. J. Davis of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers, announced last evening that negotiations are to be opened by the amalgamated with various independents in the district operating sheet and tin plate divisions relative to resuming.

This would mean the return to work of over 10,000 men. Puddling department will also be affected.

WHITAKER-GLESSNER COMPANY SUSPENDS

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 11.—All departments of the Whitaker-Glessner Steel company's plant with the exception of the blast furnace will be idle after tonight, it was announced today by General Manager A. J. McFarland. The plant employs 3,000 men. Shortage of material, it is said, caused the suspension.

ALLEGHENY STEEL CO. RUNNING NORMAL.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11.—The strike is a thing of the past at our plant, said Harry E. Sheldon, president of the Allegheny Steel company, today. "We have our sheet and plate mills in full operation; also our open-hearth furnaces, with plenty of men for the soaking pits and train and track crews for the movement of what we are producing. We not only are 'over the top,' but are running normally, just as if the strike never was called."

ANOTHER PLANT RUNNING UNDER AGREEMENT IS IDLE.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11.—Still another plant operating under an agreement with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers has been shut down. The tinplate plant of the Wheeling Steel & Iron company, located at Yorkville, O., which has been running right through the strike, suspended operations because the laborers went on strike yesterday morning and the engineers and electricians followed yesterday afternoon.

SHOWMAN AWARDED $9,500; BOARD IS TO ASK NEW TRIAL

Will Contend That Verdict in Land Case Was Excessive and Unreasonable.

AMOUNT CAUSES SURPRISE

School Authorities Anticipated a Substantial Verdict for Plaintiff But Were Astonished at Sum Decided Upon Verdict at 4 P. M. Wednesday.

Nine thousand five hundred dollars was awarded W. H. Showman by a jury in common pleas court in Uniontown for his property at Fairview avenue and Prospect street, condemned by the Connellsville school board when acquiring a site for the new high school. The Connellsville school district is the defendant.

Counsel for the school district will move for a new trial, probably early next week, chiefly on the grounds that the award was excessive and unreasonable. Under the law the motion for a new trial must be filed within five days.

While anticipating a substantial verdict for the plaintiff local school authorities were astounded at the amount, fixed by the jury. Estimates on what the plaintiff probably would get ranged from $5,000 to $7,000. Witnesses for Showman had valued the property as high as $12,000, witnesses for the defense as low as $3,000. The board of county viewers, when the condemnation proceedings were instituted awarded the owner $4,500. The school board, it is said, had offered $5,000 and then $6,000 in order to avoid litigation.

The case was given to the jury shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday and a verdict was returned about 4.

STREET CAVES IN

Extensive Damage in South Pittsburgh, Near Trump Run Bridge.

The undermining of the street is supposed to have been caused either by leakage from a sewer, or from Trump run finding its way under. How extensive the damage is has not been determined.

REID-KEPHART WEDDINGS TO BE SOLEMNIZED TONIGHT

One of the most brilliant of the early fall weddings will be that of Miss Gertrude Elizabeth Reid, only daughter of Mrs. James Madison Reid of West Peach street, and John Patrick Kephart, only son of State Treasurer and Mrs. Harmon M. Kephart of the Masonic apartments, South Pittsburgh street, to be solemnized this evening at 8 o'clock in the Reid residence. About ninety guests, including the immediate relatives of the two families and the young friends of the bride and bridegroom will attend.

Rev. N. H. G. Fife of Philadelphia, an intimate friend of the bride's family, and a former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, will officiate, using the beautiful ring service, which will be performed in the drawingroom before a striking background of bamboo, candelabra ferns and crotons. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her uncle, Alex. J. Johnston of Butte, Mont., will wear a handsome gown of white duchess satin, with a crystal girdle and a yoke of rose-point lace. Her full court train will be lined with silver cloth; while her long tulle veil, with a coronet effect of rose-point lace, will be held in place with orange blossoms. She will carry a shower bouquet of valley lilies and orchids. Her only ornament will be a diamond bracelet, the bridegroom's gift. Miss Elizabeth Stewart of Sewickley, the bride's maid of honor and only attendant, will appear in a gown of pale blue chiffon and will carry an arm bouquet of French flowers. Dean D. Sturgis of Uniontown, a classmate of the bridegroom, will serve as best man. The bride's mother will be gowned in black lace and jet, while Mrs. Kephart, mother of the bridegroom, will wear a gown of black satin and beaded georgette. Miss Sarah Kephart, the bridegroom's sister, will wear an imported gown of pale blue tulle and silver cloth. The nuptial music will be rendered by Kiefer's orchestra.

Following the ceremony a handsomely appointed wedding dinner will be served, with a charming pink color scheme predominating. Covers for twenty-two will be laid at the bridal table, which will be stationed in the diningroom. The table will be centered with exquisite pink roses, while the favors will be small shippers. The remainder of the guests will be served from small tables stationed on a side porch of the Reid home, which has been enclosed with lilies, covered with fragrant of southern amilies. Each table will be adorned with candelabras, capped with pink shades. The decorations throughout the house are unusually lovely. Bunches of huge chrysanthemums have been artistically placed in all the rooms, producing a very pretty effect. The chandeliers are entwined with pink blossoms and southern amilies. Dainty pink shades add brilliancy to the scene.

Because of the social prominence of the bride and bridegroom, the wedding is one of much interest to Connelville and Uniontown society. Both are popular members of the younger social set, and previous to her marriage Miss Reid has been honor guest at quite a number of charming luncheons, dinners and dances. Mr. Kephart is a well known young attorney, with offices in Philadelphia. He was graduated from the Georgetown University law school a member of the class of 1912. Before locating in Philadelphia he practiced law in this city. Following a wedding trip Mr. Kephart and his bride will be at home after January 1, at Levering Mill road, Cynwood, Pa.

Displayed in a room on the second floor were magnificent wedding gifts. Among the out of town guests to attend the wedding are Rev. J. Mandeville Barker of Chicago, Mr. Dean D. Sturgis, Mr. and Mrs. Eastman Hackney, Mrs. David Kane, William Henderson, Mrs. Frank Huston, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Semans, Miss Elizabeth Huston, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Skemp, Miss Eleanor Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Strawn, Dean D. Engineers Place Valuation of $508,212 on Plant With Possibly $15,000 More.

STATE AUDITORS NOT READY

Figures as to Historical Value of the Water Works Not Available as Promised; Engagement of W. L. Richard and Miss Blackburn Noted.

Special to The Courier
SCOTSDALE Oct. 11.—E. L. Stoner, J. Frank Hardy, R. H. Camlin, E. J. Fineman, A. E. Collins and C. B. Edwards were members of counsel who went to Pittsburgh to attend the hearing of the case of the Scottdale borough against the Citizens Water company which was to have been heard before the commission on Thursday. Other persons attending from Scottdale and Everson included F. M. Newcomer, secretary of council D. S. Altman, engineer for the borough, Joe M. Steiner, J. R. Campbell, T. J. Hill and Stanley Rowe of the Board of Trade and Dr. Noon of Everson. Attorney F. B. Felt of Scottdale solicitor for the borough, with Robert Smith representing the protestant, and Jesse B. Cunningham representing the water company. The case was heard before Commissioner Reed of the Public Service Commission.

The engineers report was submitted showing an agreed valuation of $508,212 which may be added to the north branch of Spruce creek dam and pipe line value of $3,000 and also an item covering real estate and right of way about $9,000. These items were not finally agreed upon by the engineers.

The hearing did not develop much in the way of testimony. The auditors for the state were to furnish the figures for the historical valuation of the plant but failed to get the report on time. The on-site hearing was Mr. Le Deauville who testified to the amount of working capital required and the going concern value of the plant.

As soon as the auditing department is ready, there will be another hearing at which time it is expected some decision will be reached.

Economy Corner

In toilet preparations our grand mothers made many things for themselves of the harmless and homely ingredients they had at hand. Some of these old recipes have been preserved and have proven their worth in performing the work they are intended for. Besides being less expensive than the lotions and creams bought in the shops one has the satisfaction of knowing just what is in them. For the complexion and for the hair these home-made preparations probably have tonic and healing qualities as effective as the manufactured articles. At least they will answer the purpose for women who feel that money spent for toilet preparations is an extravagance for them. Here is the old fashioned and reliable formula for treatment of a dry skin.

When the skin is dry and harsh it should be washed only once a day in warm water using a pure bland soap and rinsed in cold water. This is done in the morning. During the day use a disappearing cream rubbing it in and then wiping it off with a piece of old linen. At night rub in the cream but do not rub it off, but allow it to remain all night.

The disappearing cream is made as follows: White wax 1 ounce, spermaceti 1 ounce, almond oil 4 ounces, rose water 4 ounces. Use as described above. Can be put up by any druggist or at home remembering that the more a cream is beaten the smoother it will be.

An Astringent Cream.
A well recommended astringent cream is made from four ounces of mutton tallow, one and a quarter ounces of glycerin, one half a dram of tincture of benzoin, a quarter of a dram of spirits of camphor, one-eighth of a dram of powdered alum, one-quarter of a dram of Russian Isinglass.

"FRIENDLY ENEMIES."

Millions of people have already seen "Friendly Enemies," the international comedy success which A. H. Woods will present at the Scottdale theatre on Tuesday, October 14 for an engagement of one night and millions more will see it before the phenomenal run of the piece is brought to a close. It is safe to assume that when the history of Friendly Enemies is written it will be found that more than three-fourths of the present generation of English speaking playgoers have seen the piece. No only does "Friendly Enemies" embody the timeliest problem of today but it presents that problem in so moving and dramatic a story with so deft a mixture of humor and pathos of jest and gravity of fun and seriousness that it has proved irresistible. It has appealed to men and women and children of all classes and conditions not only in the United States but in England and Australia. In the three countries its success has been equally sensational and equally unprecedented. Its story is too familiar to theatregoers to need repetition. Briefly it concerns the clash of two noble human and eccentric German Americans who are the greatest friends in the world in all matters except one. That one concerns loyalty to their adopted country. One is a hundred per cent American the other is still in sympathy with the German traditions of his youth. He is converted to Americanism but the number of his conversions and the incidents and play of character that preceded it cannot be adequately described here. President Wilson in a speech from his desk in the National Theatre Washington D. C. on the occasion of the premiere of "Friendly Enemies" said: "All that I can say has already been said most admirably in this beautiful play. All the sentiments that I hope will soon reach the world."

and one half an ounce of rose water. The rose water is warmed in a china cup set in hot water and the tallow is dissolved in it. The mixture is then poured into a bottle and allowed to stand until it has become thick. It is then added to the glycerin and the other ingredients are added while the mixture is being beaten. This makes a cream which is astringent, tightening the skin, without allowing it to become flabby.

To Soften the Hands.
Before retiring take a large pair of gloves and spread mutton tallow inside also all over the hands. Wear the gloves all night and wash the hands with olive oil and white Castile soap in the morning after cleansing the hands with soap rub them well with oatmeal while still wet.

Wool Embroidery.
Wool embroidery continues to appear with insistent frequency on summer gowns for both morning and afternoon wear.

Linon silk and organdie are embroidered in riotous colors as a hat trimming, wool flowers, fruits and geometrical figures continue in high favor.

Two shades of yellow, pumpkin and lemon are lovely against background of blue white a thread of black and another of white give perfect tone values to the various shades which are used in embroideries.

Flat Flowers of Chenille.

Flat flowers of chenille are a fashion feature of autumn millinery trimming so also are silk tassels placed on the brims of medium sized hats.

MAGAZINES LATE

Strike Holds Up New York Printing Industry, Outlook Dark

Unprecedented labor troubles in the printing and publishing trades in New York City, a delaying the publication of a number of prominent magazines, among the ones the November number of Cosmopolitan which ordinarily would have been on sale in Connelville as well as all over the United States. The publisher are planning an edition of 1,200,000 copies—the largest in the history of the Cosmopolitan magazine. Wholesalers in this vicinity however have been informed that the next issue of Cosmopolitan will reach here somewhere from 10 days to two weeks later than usual—and may indeed reach here even later than that. Over-thing depends upon the labor situation. This will naturally be a grave disappointment to those who are reading Cosmopolitan regularly and are in the habit of getting it about the 10th of each month.

Among the novels now appearing serially in Cosmopolitan publication of which will be delayed are: Kindred of the Dust by Peter D. Kne, The Crimson Tide by Robert W. Chambers and The Great Secret by Arthur Somers Roche. It is hard enough to wait for the short stories we may expect to find in the next Cosmopolitan but being kept in suspense as to the continuation of the novel and the crowning of the enterprise depicted by these eminent novelists. An advertisement in The Courier will announce the appearance of the next issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

It is easier to break up a cold or check a cough now than it will be later. Persistent bronchial coughs that hang on all winter pave the way for serious throat and lung diseases. L. W. LESSONS IN OPTOMETRY

By I. W. MYERS Opt. D.

LESSON THIRTEEN

Is an Ophthalmologist considered a specialist?

He is insofar as the correction of errors of vision is concerned.

Then he does not attempt to deal with diseases of the eye?

No. An Optometrist deals largely with the mistakes which nature made in building the eye. Few eyes are normal because few are perfect in size and shape and the Optometrist by measuring the defect is able to overcome it by placing the proper lenses before the eyes of his patients.

Is there a condition of the eyes that affects everyone who reaches middle life?

Yes it is called presbyopia and it is caused by a gradual loss of the focusing power of the eyes.

Do glasses correct presbyopia?

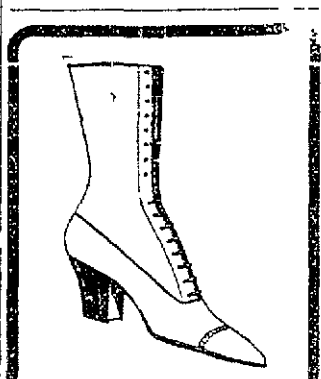

Yes by supplying the focusing power that the eye have lost glasses produce normal sight for those who are presbyopic.

LOOKING AHEAD A FEW YEARS

Remarks That Will Be Merely Ordinary When the Blimp Has Been Finally Perfected

Augustus Tolliver the soap king strode wraithfully out of his stateroom aboard the blimp and seized the arm of the porter.

"Idiot," he roared, "why didn't you give me a call this morning? I told you I had to be in London for a directors' meeting at 9 a. m. sharp and now London is Lord knows how many thousands of miles in our rear."

"Ah, poulded on ya door boss, but ya refuses to waken," replied the porter.

The soap king pulled out a watch. "Even thirty be grained dis guzzled. Where are we now?"

"Just passed over St. Louis boss, we'll be back in A. York at 12.05."

"Oh! well," said Tolliver, "I can attend that 12.30 meeting of the soap powder people and catch the 1.30 blimp for London."

IT PAYS

There is Never Any Question About That.

Some investments are of doubtful value but there is one that always pays. SATURDAY EVENING, OCT. 11, 1919.

WOMEN LEGIONAIRS.

The mothers, wives and sisters of the ex-service men in Conneltsville and vicinity were welcomed and we believe that we welcome the opportunity to become acquainted with the on Lafayette Street Post No. 391 of

The American Legion through the organization of a women's auxiliary.

More than that we know they will be both glad and proud of such an acquaintance.

To accept them in that relation—as they will be highly qualified to do—the members of the post will not only reflect credit upon their organization, but they will be giving recognition in a substantial and permanent manner to their appreciation of the cheerful self-denial willing sacrifice and loving unselfish service the loyal and patriotic women of the community understandingly gave as the part in helping to help them.

Every man who donned Uncle Sam's khaki at the call to arms knows that from the hour he left home to enter upon his training for overseas until he returned with his honorable discharge as proof of his faithful service and loyalty to our country, his safety, his comfort, his physical and moral well-being and his happiness and peace of mind were the subject of constant thought and tender solicitude and the object of fervent prayer by some brave parent, loving woman—mother or wife or sister. Through the kind-ministration of the Red Cross Y. M.

C. A. Navy League Knights of Columbus Salvation Army Young Men's Hebrew Association and other agencies which followed him wherever duty called, he was never out of touch with evidence of the interest and affection of the folks back home.

Of the effects of these influences every service man will bear testimony that

PATCHING UP THE NEW FREEDOM

JITNIES.

One of the reasons for the sudden activity of the New Freedom

Democracy in Fayette and other counties of the state, where there is no possibility of electing a single Democrat at the November election except the minority county commissioner is not far to seek.

Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer

whose greatest claim to fame in the Keystone state arises from his spectacular leadership of a forlorn hope in the contest for United States

Senator in 1917 having recently achieved the dignity of a cabinet position at Washington he now chafes at an ambition—lawful and proper in its way but not in entire accord with the views of the Old Guard—to inherit the mantle of authority and power which President Wilson will lay aside on March 4, 1921.

Well aware—painfully aware in fact—of the complete demoralization which exists in the ranks of Pennsylvania Democrats, as a heritage from the last stubborn struggle for governmental nomination honors the youthful aspirant for national leadership has passed the word to the erstwhile county leaders to begin at once a rehabilitation of the very much dilapidated Democratic machinery in every county throughout the state.

That the resultant activity is not local to Fayette county where it is being very crudely camouflaged there is abundant proof at hand. Speaking generally of this attempted reorganization of New Freedom militancy in the state the political editor of the Harrisburg Telegraph makes these pertinent observations:

Notwithstanding the fact that one of the men who have been writing political politics that Attorney General

A. Mitchell Palmer will not be the man to go in for the Democratic President nomination or to take up the mantle of leadership there is no lack of intention on the part of the attorney general and the practice of the head of the Democratic party about him not to start a campaign to centralize the national Democratic delegates from the Keystone state and to put him with all others, or the honor. They are already setting up the pins in various districts and promising to meet not only in Old Guard the Bonnell and others but any man who has been aligned with the reorganization clique and who not now subscribe to the idea of a general election the sole

Democratic leader in Pennsylvania.

The former people have shown opposition to take advantage of the situation in Washington and are going right on the line with their operations in the state and in the county in every district in Pennsylvania.

This accounts for the feverish haste that is being made in Fayette and other counties to get the New Freedom jitnies patched up in time for the November election.

Of course it is a much more insistent plan than the one which should be the rule of the party in the Omaha and it is a pity that it was

Western Front in the United States have at all times the choice lines of fresh meats, smoked and salt meats, sausages, etc. In fact everything that is raised in a first class meat shop. All of these markets are run on the same basis. We are large purchasers of all the different lines of goods which enables us to quote you the very lowest prices and to provide the very best quality. At the present time fresh beef is selling at lower prices than almost any other article which enters into the cost of living. While other goods are selling at high prices, beef is selling almost on the same basis as before the war. A comparison of our prices will convince you of the truth of this statement. These prices are almost as low as the prices in 1914 and lower than any opposition. We are selling large quantities of butter, eggs, lard and cheese. We are able to buy these goods in large quantities and are in turn able to quote very low prices. The very best quality of fresh smoked and salt meats, sausages and other meat products are handled. NEW LEGISLATION AFFECTING COAL IS IN PROSPECT Hearing Before Senate Committee Indicates the Scope of Measure.

A BUREAU IS SUGGESTED

For the Collection and Dissemination of Information Relating to Production, Costs, Selling Prices, Distribution, Transportation, Consumption.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The time is close at hand when Congress will be asked to enact additional legislation affecting the coal industry. Developments in the Senate indicate that the coal situation point irresistibly to that conclusion, says The Weekly Digest of the National Coal Association. Senator Frelinghuysen, chairman of the committee conducting the inquiry, apparently is of the opinion that a law should be enacted which would vest in the government power to obtain the widest and fullest information possible concerning the industry—production, costs, selling prices, distribution, transportation, consumption—and that this information, gathered currently should be placed at the disposal of the railroads, producers, consumers and the general public.

The collection and dissemination of such information, Senator Frelinghuysen has indicated, probably would tend to stabilize the industry, place it beyond the attack of the demagogue, insure fair prices and fair profits, and make available data for meeting the country's needs for coal and the producers' needs for cars, labor and other essentials.

These facts were clearly indicated during a hearing held by the Senate committee a few days ago. The witnesses examined concurred in the view generally, that the program outlined by Senator Frelinghuysen was desirable, although there was considerable divergence of opinion as to how far the government should be permitted to go in centralizing its activities along the lines indicated. The witnesses at this hearing were:

David L. Wing, assistant chief economist of the Federal Trade Commission, proposed that the Federal Trade Commission be given the means of enforcing a uniform co-accounting mandatory upon producer and distributors; that the proposed law make mandatory upon producer and distributors—anthracite as well as bituminous—to keep their books by a uniform method and render regular reports to the commission.

A. G. Gutheim, assistant manager of the car service section of the Railroad Administration, though it would be exceedingly desirable to have some uniform governmental authority collect data on the subject of coal production and the needs of coal production. Such information, he believes would be of great benefit to the industry and the consuming public.

George O. Smith, director of the Geological Survey, thought that it could be in accord with the natural law to connect transportation and coal; that the community of interest was there; that "if we are to have public control of the transportation of the country we must, at the same time, have a co-ordinated control of the coal industry, also in the interest of the public."

C. E. Leshner, superintendent of the Geological Survey, testified that in his opinion the federal government should collect and disseminate information currently on production, distribution, market movement, consumption, stock and transportation of coal in detail; that such information would stabilize the industry; that the chief need at the present time is to educate the consumer and that the proposed bureau of coal industry could make an effort to meet that need.

The scope of the proposed legislation was indicated in the principal question propounded to each witness by Senator Frelinghuysen, as follows:

"I want to ask your opinion as to the advisability of enacting legislation which would in a measure be a survey of the entire coal industry of the country, establishing a bureau or under some present bureau, a branch which would compile statistics showing consumption of both anthracite and bituminous coal in years past, as well as an estimate of future annual needs, so that whoever has charge of the direction and control of transportation will have before them a working basis for the allocation of cars in supplying the mines with the needed capacity. That is first."

"Secondly, that bureau to investigate costs of production, so that the public may know that the charges of the operators at the mines are fair and reasonable, and are yielding a fair and reasonable return, under mine conditions at the time the information is desired. In other words, that if at a certain period of the year a complaint were made against a mine operator for excessive charges, it could be shown that he was operating along a certain schedule and that he was receiving fair and reasonable returns for the coal he was producing, and to protect him against any charge of extortion; to trace the cost of coal to the ultimate consumer, and to protect him through some system of reports from the railroad company—from the transportation companies—transferring the coal from the cars to the consumer, or to the wholesaler's storage yard, as well as information from the wholesaler and retailer who purvey the coal, so that the government will have full and complete information of the cost of all coal to the consumer; to require from the Railroad Administration—whatever it may be at that time—reports showing the allocation of coal cars to the mines; to require from the mine operators:

of shortages. In other words, a complete clearing house and exchange for the coal industry of the country. Would such a scheme be practical and advisable?"

There is every indication that legislation embodying Senator Frelinghuysen's views will be introduced by him in the Senate within a short time.

Team That Started Practice This Season Expected to Develop Into Star Eleven for 1920; Rally Month Being Observed by Reunion Presbyterians.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Oct. 11.—Friday morning about 2 o'clock a noise as if a chicken coop was being raided was heard on West Main street. Every time you looked up a window could be seen being raised or a light snapped on. After some time it was learned that a house-cat belonging to W. W. Carr on Main street had met a weasel and had put up a good fight to bring home the pelt. After several attempts, however, to go over the fence with the weasel, it had to leave it go and go back over the fence itself. The weasel put up a good fight and outwitted the cat going over the fence. Through the moonlight the two animals could be seen very clearly.

Rally Month. The month of October is being observed as rally month at the Re-Union Presbyterian church and every Sunday in the month the members try to increase their attendance.

Pat on Degrees. The Julia Rebekah lodge of this place went to Youngwood on Thursday night and put on the degree work for the Youngwood Rebekahs. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

High School Going Good. The Mount Pleasant high school team is practicing hard and although it has never had any practice before this year, it is thought by critics that before the season is over it will be whipped into shape and will make an excellent team for next season.

PLAN TO STOP THEFTS OF CARS

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WILL AID THE STATES IN FIGHT ON AUTOMOBILE STEALING.

PRESENT LAWS INADEQUATE

Proposed Legislation by Congress Will Be Framed to Suppress Crime in Interstate Commerce—Figures That Are Startling.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.
Washington—The federal government proposes to re-enforce the states in their efforts to put a stop to the theft of automobiles. Congress, the committee on judiciary of the house of representatives says, is the only power competent to legislate on this rapidly growing evil, and has reported a bill which, it is believed, will get through each house unopposed. The proposed legislation is based on the principle that congress has the right to exercise any kind of power over automobiles in interstate commerce, that is to say automobiles that move from one state to another.

Thieves steal automobiles and take them from one state to another and oftentimes have associates in this crime who receive and sell the stolen cars. Every state has a law on the subject, according to the house committee on judiciary, these laws have proved inadequate to meet the evil. A large percentage of the thieves escape, and thousands of stolen machines are never recovered because, so it is asserted, the stolen machines are rushed from the state in which they are stolen into another state. The advocates of federal legislation on the subject point out that the loss to the people of the United States by reason of this stealing amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars every year and is getting worse.

Theft Insurance Up 100 Per Cent.

It is also asserted in support of the proposed legislation that it is getting so now it is difficult for the owners of the cheaper cars to obtain theft insurance due to the great loss that insurance companies have sustained.

The judiciary committee points out that during the last year automobile theft insurance on the cheaper classes of cars has increased 100 per cent. The committee says that automobile thieves who make a specialty of this crime do not steal many of the higher priced cars, the reason being, of course, that they are not so easily sold. During the calendar year 1918, 22,273 cars were reported stolen in 18 western and middle western cities. The city of Detroit, Mich., headed the list with 2,557 cars stolen. Chicago came second with 2,011, and St. Louis third with 1,511. Kansas City led in cars stolen and not recovered, 46 per cent. St. Louis was second with 40 per cent of stolen cars lost absolutely.

The judiciary committee of the house says its inquiries into the situation reveal that thieves have found the automobile field one in which they can reap heavy harvests due to the fact that there are so many automobiles now in the United States. On July 1, 1919, the number of automobiles and trucks registered in the United States totaled 6,333,000. July and August are always heavy selling months. It is therefore reasonable to assume that the number of automobiles now in use has increased to 6,500,000 cars, with an average estimated value of $1,200 each, giving a total value for all cars now in use at $7,800,000,000.

Federal Legislative Plan.
The purpose of the federal automobile law is to suppress crime in interstate commerce. The house committee on judiciary holds that automobiles admittedly are tangible property, capable of being transmitted in interstate commerce. According to the committee, no good reason exists why congress, invested with the power to regulate commerce among the several states, should not provide that such commerce should not be polluted by the carrying of stolen property from one state to another.

The governors of several states and the police authorities of a large number of cities have advised the committee on the judiciary of the house of representatives that federal legislation dealing with stolen automobiles would be welcome. The item of cost connected with the running down of automobile thieves has increased in many of the cities until it is giving the authorities much concern. Nearly every city now has a force of detectives engaged exclusively in running down automobile thieves and trying to recover automobiles.

There is, so the house committee was informed, close co-operation between the various states and the larger cities, but in spite of this the number of automobiles stolen continues to increase, while the number recovered continues to decrease.

Empty Than His Title.
It is told that one day shortly before the armistice, a dazed, hungry-looking young man turned up at a British camp and asked if he might have something to eat.

"Certainly," said the officer, noting the man's look. "But may I ask who you are?"

"A weary soldier stole over the young soldier's face as he replied, 'Oh, I'm the Prince of Wales—but for heaven's sake forget it!'"

F. CHANCE HAD PROPER DOPE

Former Manager of Chicago Cubs Was First Man to Predict Managerial Success of Moran.

Frank Chance was the first baseball man to predict the managerial success of Patrick Moran, who won the National League pennant with the Reds. Chance, when he handled the Cubs, had Moran and Tom Neesham, both catchers, on his team. Later, when Chance took hold of the Yankees in 1915 he vainly tried to obtain Moran as a coach. Moran was helping Charlie Doolin, manager of the Phillies, at that time, and the Quaker owners refused to let Pat go.

"Moran will be a great manager some day," said Chance when the

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Col. Lester Snover is the name of a tall, husky southpaw who has left the marine corps to enlist under the banner of John McGraw. The left flank of Snover's highly martial name is not a title—it's his real name. In military rank Snover never climbed higher than private. Before he enlisted Snover was with Elmer of the New York State league.

SCORES TEN RUNS IN THIRTEENTH INNING

First Time Major League Team Has Ever Turned Trick.

Kansas City Once Broke Up Detroit Game With Same Number of Runs in Eleventh—"Greasy" Neale Captured Ten Runs.

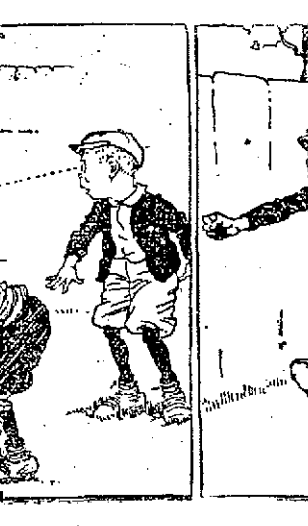

Cincinnati's Reds did something this year that never had been done before by a major league team—that is, score ten runs in the thirteenth inning. The Detroit Tigers broke up the game in precisely the same manner as the Reds did when they upset the Superbas by turning the lever of the scoring mill and grinding out ten runs.

Just once before, in an extra inning fray, has the winner, in unknowning the de, reached double figures in tallies in the windup chapter, and that was in 1896, when Detroit was supporting a National league club and Kansas City was trying to support one.

On July 11 of that year the Cowboys and Detroit were on even terms at the end of the tenth. In the eleventh the Missourians broke up the game in precisely the same manner as the Reds did when they upset the Superbas by turning the lever of the scoring mill and grinding out ten runs. Cincinnati is the only major league club that has scored ten runs in the thirteenth inning of a championship game. Kansas City the only National league club that has scored ten runs in the eleventh inning of a championship game.

Another record set in Brooklyn on May 15 was when "Greasy" Neale, covering right for the Reds, caught ten runs. This is a record number for a right fielder in a game of this length. Owen Wilson of the Pirates, playing the same position as Neale, had the same number of put-outs when his team was defeating Brooklyn, 1 to 0, August 22, 1908, in 17 innings. Left fielders and center fielders occasionally capture ten flies in games of regulation and extra length; right fielders very rarely do.

Big Lot of Hay Fever Jokes

But Kentucky Man Says—"People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony are Kidding Themselves."

Wouldn't Be Any Rose or Hay Fever if Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance.

"Yes, there's a real NINETY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay fever or rose fever," frankly states a druggist in a prosperous Kentucky city. "But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning."

"The annual crop of hay-fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get an ounce of Mentholized Arcline and by just adding water that has been boiled make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

"Many of my hay-fever friends tell me that by starting to gargle and sniff or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often fails to appear and in cases where it does show up is very mild and does not annoy."

"The Better Class of Pharmacists" who dispense Mentholized Arcline say it will greatly modify any attack even when taken three or four days after hostilities begin.

Go to a real live druggist when you get ready to make a pint.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

A GREAT many persons have a misconception of real thrift in that they believe it consists merely in saving money. While it is true that saving money is one of the essential functions of thrift practices, a little reflection will reveal that there are many other factors, each as important as mere money-saving.

Money which is saved means simply that it has been diverted from useless to useful channels.

Instead of being spent for purposes that will do us no good or that may do us harm, our savings are spent constructively.

Even though we do nothing more than put our accumulations in a savings bank they are immediately invested for us by the bank. The institution acts as our agent in spending our savings for us.

In the course of time we may withdraw our deposits from the bank and invest them in a home, a farm, a business, or in some other worthy manner.

Thus the essence of real thrift is correct spending.

To be thrifty is to be a wise spender.

The same analysis may be applied to the thrift of time, thrift of health, thrift of energy and the various other phases of individual economics.

We have at one extreme of the scale the miser who hoards his money, not for useful purposes, but merely for the selfish lust of piling up wealth. At the other end of the scale we have the spendthrift who gives no thought to practical values. He is a man without pecuniary perspective. The money in his hand possesses certain definite values of purchasing power, but he has no concrete appreciation of these values or their relative importance. Hence, he dissipates his money as fast as he receives it.

The thrifty man embodies the qualities that are lacking in the miser and in the spendthrift. He is well balanced where they are out of pose. He can see facts to which they are blind.

To be thrifty is neither to spend all nor to save all.

Thrift is the conserving of each resource that it may be invested to the best advantage.

This is why the thrifty man never stands still. He is ever moving onward and upward on the pathway of success.

The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said:

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND

Jane Bunker
Copyright—The Debe-Harris Co.

I had been standing by the bureau while we spoke and something to my eye seemed missing on it. She hadn't more than left the room when I knew what—my revolver was gone. It lay always on the corner where I could put my hand on it in the night in the dark. I knew I hadn't seen it when I cleared up the room; I knew monsieur couldn't have helped seeing it when he cleared out the bureau. And by this token, I knew that he had taken it.

My Revolver Was Gone.

"The cur!" thought I. But the loss was a good look, for after the first minute of fright at finding myself without defense, I got so hopping mad at the sheer meanness of the creature—also so pleasantly glad at the little compliment he was paying me by admitting that he was afraid of me and a revolver in combination—that I'd have sold him with a baton if he'd shown his face at the door. And at that moment I heard the sound of a latch working in a door. I thought it was my own, and dashed out and there it wide.

It was the lady to the adjoining flat. She said: "How these keys do stick, sometimes! I wonder if anybody has been tampering with my lock."

Tampering with the lock! I closed my door without thinking her of the reminder—I had been in the act of getting a new lock when monsieur called me to Mrs. Delario's supposed death. Oh, if only I had put it out! Then I remembered that other key on Friday night—the key working in my own door and that I assumed belonged to Mr. Man-downstairs.

No wonder he didn't swear at me when I called out to him he had the wrong flat: Mr. Man was—monsieur! I dug on my wraps, telling Mrs. Jimmison I had an errand out, and in less than fifteen minutes I had a locksmith putting on a new Yale lock and exchanging the small chain-bolt for the heaviest in the market.

I had rung when I returned with the man to give color to my tale of a lost key. Mrs. Jimmison let me in and seemed greatly astonished to see a man begin at once taking out screws. "So you lost your key," she observed placidly—just her way of taking everything I happen to be doing as a personal matter of her own. She was never prepared to supersede the operation. "Well, that's too bad to have to go to the expense of a new lock. Couldn't the man find a key that would fit? The key would cost only a quarter and you wouldn't have to buy a whole lock."

Her arms were "olded and she showed she meant to see the new lock on to the last screw. I gazed at her in sheer wonder that a person could be so stupid, so obtuse as not to know she wasn't wanted; and from her, my eyes traveled along the hall, to the dining room, to the table—my heart jumped, and stopped; the key in the door was not there!

"What have you done with these bracelets?" I demanded, as soon as I could control my voice.

"Yes—what did you do with them?"

"If you'd mentioned them before you went out—"

"WHAT DID YOU DO WITH THEM?"

"Why, they were so faded—I never thought you wanted them—"

She was beginning to quail and slide away. I caught her wrist—my fingers left marks—she showed them to me later.

"What—did—you—do—with-them? Answer me instantly!"

"I threw them out!"

As Mrs. Jimmison said those words—that she had thrown the bracelets away—the locksmith handed me the two keys, saying that the lock and the bolt were all right and that was all. I had paid him at the shop in order to hasten matters at the house, for I hoped, if possible, to get the job done as quickly that even George wouldn't find out what I had brought the man in for. I was still digging my fingers into her wrist while he gathered up his tools and he gave the two of us a curious look, half amusement, half wonder at my vehemence, before he closed himself out.

As for Mrs. Jimmison, she had been too paralyzed with fright to move. The instant the door was shut, I dropped her wrist and made a dash for the kitchen, hoping the garbage hadn't yet gone down. As I did it, I let out one short unpleasant word. That word was "Damn!" and into it I crowded all the pent-up feelings of the last twenty-four hours.

I saw her look of horror as I closed the door—she thought I had gone insane! Now, I'm not given to profanity, but I am willing to admit that it may have its uses on occasion—as for instance when your scrubber-lady has just thrown away your million-dollar bunch of hyscintins and "didn't know you wanted those faded things." My one bad word, however, let off enough steam for me to realize that I didn't even know if the diamonds were there or not!

Hastily I pulled out the papers and rubbish and dumped them on the floor and had just pounced on the hyscintins, when the front bell rang.

Were the diamonds safe? I didn't dare at the minute to investigate—I didn't dare even to be caught with them in my hands. Suppose it were monsieur, coming now in broad daylight!

The ring was repeated. I grabbed up a bit of newspaper and rolled up the bunch, cranning it into the kitchen sashpan on the shelf—an operation I hadn't more than finished, setting the lid on so softly as I could, when I heard a man's voice shout my name, followed by the words "special delivery."

Without waiting for Mrs. Jimmison to decide if it were safe to call me, I stepped out and signed for it. As I closed the messenger out I looked at the address—the writing was unknown to me; and I was in the act of tearing open the envelope, when Mrs. Jimmison sank on a hall chair and began to weep.

"To think—oh, to think—to think," she sobbed. "It's hard—"

"Yes, it is hard for some people to think," I observed, icily glaring at her and running my thumb under the flap.

"It's hard—after all these years! I—I've tried my best to p-please you—"

"No—you haven't. I have repeatedly told you never—under any circumstances whatever—to throw away anything in my rooms without first asking me. Today, you have thrown away some flowers that I had reason to value—"

"You didn't tell me," she murmured. "If you had given me the tip, now—told me you valued them—"

"Do you think I have to tell my private affairs to you?" I cried hotly.

"I hope I'm a friend," she interrupted at the word. "If I'd seen any reason—"

"It's not your place to see reasons!"—she took a step toward the kitchen at the reminder—"but to obey orders. I'm under no obligation to give you reasons why I value flowers or why I don't."

The indignation faded out of her face; a gleam of real intelligence took its place, and this is what she said when I stopped for breath:

"I'm awful sorry I touched those flowers. As true as I stand here, I never once thought it might be a gem-tleman friend give them to you."

With that she started for the kitchen, adding: "And here I am keeping you from reading your special delivery." She smiled knowingly.

Gentleman friend! In those words all was explained and forgiven between the two of us—there was nothing but kindly sympathy—woman to woman, you know—as she said them. She closed the kitchen door tight—I knew it was the better to breathe me in new tales and fresh glories of romance! I could have wrung her neck. Gentleman friend, indeed! The one gentleman actively interested in me was after me with a knife and had threatened me with a revolver.

I had forgotten all about the letter still in my hand, and thought only of the diamonds.

The front bell rang as Jimmison crossed the sill. She stepped back and asked if she should go, but I motioned her to answer it myself and she disappeared from view.

It was a boy with a telegram. I found his "sign here" line and scrawled my name.

Then I came to myself. I had lost the special delivery letter!

CHAPTER IX.

The Telegram.

A telegram in the hand is worth two special delivery letters you can't find; so I tore open the yellow envelope.

Now, it is a habit of mine to read the signature before the message. The signature was my brother's name. My brother is not a telegraph person, except for bad news, and the sight of his name gave me a shock; and for a good half-minute I could not go on with the message. But when I got the courage to face what had happened in the family, this is what appeared:

"I am obliged to ask you to come to Philadelphia tomorrow on urgent business. Take the train leaving New York at 11 a. m. I will meet you at Broad Street station."

I think the first thing that struck me as queer in it was the large number of words—words that no experienced business man, using telegraph communication all the time, would have put in—the "to's" and "the's," and then, "I am obliged to ask"—my brother would say, "Must ask you come," or "Please come."

The second queer thing was saying he'd meet me when his office is just around the corner from the station and he knows I don't expect him to waste time standing about waiting for a train that may be late.

The third queer thing was that there was no business of mine he could be needing to see me about, and if it were business of his, he'd ask it as a favor, it was then that my eye slid up to the late and I saw it had been sent from New York.

Well, if he were in New York, why hadn't he telephoned me or come up to the house?

I wish I could say it flashed over me instantly that this was a decoy designed to get me into monsieur's clutches, but it didn't flash at all—I thought it queer, and I was puzzled; but I am free to confess that if it had been an ordinary business man's message, I should have packed my suitcase, put the diamonds in my stockings, and taken the train specified. But while I was still wondering what my brother could be wanting me for in this peremptory way, Mrs. Jimmison brought me the special delivery letter, which, with triumph and pleasure in her face, she said she had found under the set tubs.

The Signature Was My Brother's Name.

I pulled it out of the envelope and read:

Monsieur was seen by two witnesses to carry over the package containing the jewels referred to. If madame desires to return them to their owner, telephone Hotel Imperial at 9 a. m. The owner gives madame this one opportunity to rectify her mistake without further trouble or publicity. Failure to comply with the request to telephone will prove madame's intentions and necessitate active measures for the recovery of the jewels."

"Oh, you don't say!" I sneered. "Well, I wonder what next?" And by that letter I knew I still had the diamonds!

So I was to telephone at nine o'clock! By rights—and monsieur's calculations—I should have received the letter before the first delivery; instead, it had come after and by accident I hadn't read it till now. The telegram was timed nine-forty-five.

It was then that I began to see through a hole in a stone. I had not telephoned—which proved I meant to keep the diamonds. My next move, obviously, would be to get them out of the city—to my brother's, of course. The telegram gave me the excuse for doing it; also told him by what train and station I should leave, for he had set them himself. But why had he set a day train? Why not at night? It puzzled me at first until I saw his reason—I could disappear out of a daylight crowd about four times easier than out of a night crowd. Who would notice, among hundreds of women going through the Pennsylvania station, a woman as simply dressed as I, carrying a common suitcase? Probably no one.

I confess I was so much disturbed as I thought what might so easily have happened had I acted on the telegram, that it was some time before I got my wits together. One thing was clear to me, however—monsieur was going to act with great rapidity and secrecy—secret—was the main point; for if he were sure I had the stones, he had only to get a search warrant and he'd have the stones.

Mrs. Jimmison came to my study while I was pondering all this and asked me: "What about lunch?" I told her roundly that the Pennsylvania station, a woman as simply dressed as I, carrying a common suitcase? Probably no one.

The moment she was out of the place, I took open the bunch of hyscintins. "The diamonds were there."

"Good Lord!" I said as I saw them. The things were a calamity.

I rolled them up again, but I must get a new bunch of hyscintins; I must get something—I must act—I must get the stones home to Mrs. Delario—I must at least ask her what she wanted done with them and tell her how unsafe they were to me.

I tried the telephone, but got no answer, and while I was clacking at it Mrs. Jimmison came, home from the delatessant and I had to hang up.

While I ate, my mind went like a hammer. How could I get the diamonds out of the house? To whom could I entrust them? Not a living soul, so far as I could see—unless I could get them back to Mrs. Delario herself, which didn't seem likely in the present state of the case.

You see just how the man had mo at his mercy. If I'd been a person accustomed to sneaking round and making quick getaways, I'd have known what to do and how to do it. In the next place, I hadn't the least idea of the number of people I was pitted against—the strength of the opposing forces. At that time, I hadn't the slightest suspicion that he was playing practically, a lone hand in the game and had only one hired detective and he didn't know what he was watching Mrs. Delario and me for. But as a result of my thinking, the idea came to me to find out if I were now watched and followed.

Telling Mrs. Jimmison to wait till I came back, and though it was raining hard, I went out for an investigatory walk around the block.

A man sat in the lower hall as I stepped out of the elevator. His back was toward the light of the front door. I think the devil himself must have got into me then, for without looking at Mr. Man, except the glance I gave him as I left the car, I walked straight into him and stepped on his toe, hard.

He said "Ouch!"

"No—not very much," he replied, and looked glum.

Now, I had calculated this way to pass him in the act of stepping on him and make him turn when he answered me, so the light would fall on his face. I got the look at him I wanted and went out.

I walked half a block and cursed sharply in my tracks. Mr. Man was about twenty feet in the rear, following me. He began to limp the moment he saw me noticing him.

I walked past my house to the end of the block. As I turned north I saw Mr. Man ambling along in my direction.

I stepped into a florist's and bought a fresh bunch of hyscintins. By the time I had them paid for, Mr. Man had reached the store and was looking in the window, pretending not to see me.

"Did I hurt you very much?" I asked sweetly.

"No—not very." He touched his hat and I thought he looked annoyed.

I sprang along ahead of him and turned at One Hundred and Forty-fifth street. I fancy Mr. Man had to do a little sprinting himself on his poor lame foot. I had vanished into a toy shop and was buying a doll for my niece when he discovered me—and pretended he didn't see me. He walked on ahead, but I caught up with him.

"Did I hurt you very much?" I asked.

"No—not very." He was beginning to look astonished.

I sprinted away and turned south on Amsterdam Street. There, I went into a stationery store and bought an ink eraser. Mr. Man passed the door and glanced in. I motioned him to wait, but he pretended not to see. He was some distance ahead when I came out. I ran after him and caught up.

"Did I hurt you very badly?" I asked.

"No—not very." He answered, giving me narrowly. "I'm afraid you're giving yourself too much concern over a little accident." He was, I saw, beginning to wonder which of us was following which!

"No," said I quietly, "I'm not giving myself the least concern over you."

stepped on toe—I'm simply using it as an excuse to get a good look at you as various lights so I'll know you again to it any possible disguise you may assume."

I have always regarded that episode—and those last words—as a stroke of genius on my part. If I do say it! It came to me on the spur of the moment without thinking about it, and nearly bowled Mr. Man over. Before he had decided what to say, or what to do to allay my suspicion of him, I bolted across the street, diagonally ducked between two trolley cars one of which hid me from view long enough for me to get into the corner drug store where I dashed into the telephone-booth and called up Mrs. Delario.

I had considerable difficulty in getting her and I felt very second was precious. Mr. Delario was lurking about somewhere looking for me, and I rather guessed she had one watching her. My suspicions seemed confirmed, for the moment she recognized my voice she said "I can't talk to you," in a tragic determined sort of way and I felt her in the act of hanging up.

"Wait!" I shouted peremptorily. "Why can't you talk to me? Are you watched?" Is everything you say overheard?

"Yes."

"All right—then I'll do the talking. You can answer yes and no, can't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, we're both in the same boat—I'm watched too—followed by a detective. This is the first chance I've had to get you and I don't know how soon I'll be able to get you again. Is your house watched?"

"Yes."

"Could I run the blockade?"

"No!" This was fairly shouted at me.

"Is there any way I could get those articles back to you today?"

"No—none whatever now. No—not under any consideration."

"Couldn't you come up and get them?"

"No—of course not."

"Couldn't you send up?"

"When could I send? Impossible—totally impossible." Her tone was so emphatic that I knew there was nothing to be hoped for in that quarter.

I felt she was about to ring off and leave me with that and shouted at her "Here—hold on! I don't know what to do—you'll have to advise me."

"But I can't! You must do as you think best—you understand it."

"I don't! That's just the trouble. Listen. There are some things I've got to know about. You keep on answering yes and no—that isn't going to give anything away at your end, and I'm in a drug store and I don't think anything will get out from this end. . . . You knew I was at your house yesterday?"

"Yes—after you had left."

"You knew I was accused? And that I denied everything?"

"I thought it happened that way—I wasn't sure."

"Were you accused, too?"

"Yes."

"Well, we're both in the same boat—I'm watched too—followed by a detective. This is the first chance I've had to get you and I don't know how soon I'll be able to get you again. Is your house watched?"

"Yes."

"Could I run the blockade?"

"No!" This was fairly shouted at me.

"Is there any way I could get those articles back to you today?"

"No—none whatever now. No—not under any consideration."

"Of the same thing?"

"I presume so."

"You denied everything?"

"Absolutely."

"Now I really must know this—did you bring those articles in yourself?"

"Yes."

"You said a friend did."

"Well—I didn't feel I could explain at the time. There were circumstances connected with it—"

"At the time we crossed together—this last trip?"

"Yes. Can't you see how things have been worked? If I'd followed my intuitions, I shouldn't have allowed—"

"The girl to come with you?"</

CONCRETE WORK ON NEW ROAD WEST OF DUNBAR IS FINISHED; BRICKING WILL START AT ONCE

Special to The Courier.
DUNBAR, Oct. 10.—The concrete work on the half mile of improved road from the borough line west to the state road at Hair's hill, has been completed, and all who have seen it pronounce the job an excellent one, and one that has staying qualities about it. The work of bricking the road will be started at once and by the first of November it is hoped to have the entire half mile ready for traffic. The state road which was to have been improved from Logan's crossing east to the North Union township line this fall will not be started this season because the bids were not considered satisfactory, and other bids will be asked for. It is understood the contract will be let at an early date to allow the successful bidder to begin work with the first favorable weather of spring.

The embryo baseball team recently organized at Peckin school is making an enviable record for itself in spite of its youth and inexperience. Already it has met and vanquished the parochial school team. Peckin is also after the scalp of the furnace school team, and any other school teams organized this season.

The returns of Rev. H. L. Humbert for another year greatly please the M. E. congregation here, and also the people of the town. Even greater success than in the past is anticipated in the year just begun. He will preach morning and evening in the church next Sunday. Everybody is invited.

About 50 Dunbarians were at Uniontown last Sunday to hear Bishop Perry preach, and not one of the number regrets having gone. All agree it was the greatest sermon they ever heard.

Mrs. J. L. Keffer, Jr., and son, J. L. III, of Clairton, who have been visiting relatives here for the past week, returned home this morning. Mrs. Keffer is a daughter of J. L. Keffer of Dunbar, township teacher. She was recently appointed postmistress for Clairton and will take charge of the office as soon as her commission arrives.

Mrs. David A. Keffer of Clairton who is here supervising the improvements on her property at Peckin, was shopping in Conneltsville yesterday. She expects to be able to occupy her house within two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hardy of Hardy Hill left Monday morning for Rochester, Minn., to consult the Mayo brothers about the health of Mrs. Hardy, who has not been well for the past two years. If an operation is deemed necessary, she will enter the hospital. Mrs. Hardy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gitzroy of New England hill, and a sister of Miss Hattie Gitzroy of the West Penn. mines.

Fred Smith of Aberdeen, Kansas, a Civil War veteran, came here from the reunion at Columbus, Ohio, and is visiting relatives, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyer of Water street. He expects to remain in this section for several weeks.

Charles Riley of Speers hill has just returned from a two weeks' vacation spent chiefly visiting his sister, Mrs. Melvin Fish, of eastern New York. The latter days were spent with relatives in Morgantown, W. Va.

Fred C. Smith of Hardy hill, the well known West Penn man, is in Pittsburgh this week on business.

Mrs. L. B. McCoy of Scrivener is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyer of Water street, this week.

Since the town went dry, J. W. Boyer has found business so flourishing that he has been obliged to enlarge his store to accommodate his trade.

Mrs. R. W. Davis of Claysville, who has been visiting Mrs. Mollie Gummerson of Woodvale street, has gone to North Carolina to meet a brother who has just arrived from France. If he is discharged at once he will accompany her home to Claysville and later visit in Dunbar.

Miss Jessie Martin spent last week-end at Greensburg visiting her friend, Miss Bertha Cribbs, formerly of Dunbar.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leapline gave a surprise party Thursday evening in honor of their son, Lester, it being the 14th anniversary of his birth. A goodly number of his schoolmates and friends were the guests. They had a delightful time, with games, of various sorts and music. At 8 o'clock a fine feast was served. Lester received a number of presents, which he appreciates highly. The hours were from 4 to 8 o'clock. Those present were Irene Baker, Bessie Baker, Mitty Lehman, Margaret Lehman, Edward Miller, Lewis Ball, Curtis Lehman, Harry Senior, Annie Mader, Fred Keffer, Richard Koffe, Ruth Keffer, Anna Mary Davis, Charles Miller, David Leapline, Ruby Leapline, Violet Leapline, Ruth Leapline, Bernice Leapline, George Leapline, Wilber Leapline and Jessie Davis.

Mrs. E. E. Miller of Keffer's was a Conneltsville shopper Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deah of Ferguson are the proud parents of a 10-pound baby boy.

Mrs. Frances Welmer has had her house at Ferguson newly painted.

Henry Moody returned home from camp last week and greeted for the first time his baby boy, born while he was in the service. His wife was Miss Helen Hardy.

Tony Benli's new store room is nearing completion. He expects to occupy it about next week.
